WHEREAS, in addition to the millions of tourists who visit each year, the most recent point-in-time homeless census (conducted by the Miami-Dade County Homeless Trust in January 2024) shows that the City is also inhabited by a fluctuating homeless population of approximately 154 people; and

WHEREAS, protecting the health, safety, and general welfare of the City's residents and visitors (including homeless persons) is the most fundamental function performed by the City; and

WHEREAS, addressing homelessness is a challenging and cyclical issue that requires a multitude of approaches to address and curb its impact; and

WHEREAS, the City of Miami Beach experiences extremely high temperatures and severe weather conditions, particularly during the month of August, which coincides with the peak of hurricane season; and

WHEREAS, in addition to disease and violence, these conditions pose significant health and safety risks to individuals experiencing homelessness within the City; and
